JCES Call for Student Voices Submissions

The Journal of Community Engagement and Scholarship (JCES) is a refereed journal that provides a mechanism through which faculty, staff, and students of academic institutions and their community partners disseminate scholarly works from all academic disciplines. A goal of JCES is to encourage the integration of teaching, research, and community engagement. Each issue of JCES attempts to publish at least one student submission.

CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS FOR STUDENT VOICES

Students from all disciplines are invited to submit original work to the Student Voices section of JCES. All forms of writing, analysis, creative approaches, and methodologies are acceptable for the journal. Specific types of submissions appropriate for the Student Voices section include commentaries, critical reflections, and opinion pieces related to community engagement and/or engaged scholarship. Given that engagement scholarship is an interdisciplinary field in which all appropriate ways to best “tell the story” are not known, scholarly contributions of all kinds related to the field of engagement scholarship are welcome and will be considered for publication in JCES.

Student Voices submissions are accepted on an ongoing basis. Manuscripts should be 750–2,000 words in length. You can see examples of published submissions in our online issues found on the JCES website — jces.ua.edu. Inquiries and submissions should be emailed to Assistant to the Editor Vicky Carter at jces@ua.edu. Hardcopy submissions are not accepted.

JCES' MISSION

The Journal of Community Engagement and Scholarship is published by the Division of Community Affairs at The University of Alabama. Its mission is to provide a mechanism through which faculty, staff, and students of academic institutions and their community partners disseminate scholarly works from all academic disciplines, integrating teaching, research, and community engagement.
